What is it?

Southcentral Foundation’s Nuka System of Care is the whole health care system created, managed, and owned by Alaska Native people to achieve physical, mental, emotional and spiritual wellness.

The relationship-based Nuka System of Care is comprised of the following integrated parts working together – in relationship – to support wellness:

- organizational strategies and processes
- medical, behavioral, dental and traditional practices
- supporting infrastructure

“Nuka” is a word used in many different cultures; some common meanings include honor, strength, big living things, dignity, love, generosity and support. These are many of the things that make up who we are.

History and evolution of Nuka

1982 - Southcentral Foundation (SCF) is established as a 501(c)3 Alaska Native nonprofit health care organization under the tribal authority of Cook Inlet Region Inc. (CIRI).

1984 - SCF enters into a self-determination contract with the Indian Health Service to provide dentistry, optometry, community health representatives and injury control services.

1994 - SCF increases its contracting capacity with the Indian Health Service to operate nearly half of all primary care services for Alaska Native people in the Anchorage Service Unit.

1998 - Alaska Native people assume full ownership and management of programs located in the new Anchorage Native Primary Care Center.

2008 - Ten years of outcomes data available on the Nuka System of Care; increasing number of organizations from around the world visit Southcentral Foundation to learn more.

2010 - SCF establishes its Nuka Institute and prepare for its inaugural Nuka System of Care Conference in 2011.

2011 - SCF is one of four recipients of the 2011 Malcolm Baldrige National Quality Award.

2012 - SCF celebrates its 30th anniversary.

2012 - SCF opens the Benteh Nuutah Valley Native Primary Care Center in Wasilla, Alaska, to serve the rapidly growing population in the Matanuska-Susitna Valley.

2015 - SCF serves more than 65,000 Alaska Native and American Indian customer-owners, offers over 80 programs and maintains a workforce of 1,800 employees.
Customer-ownership

- Alaska Native people assumed ownership of the health care system from the federal government.
- Ownership is a shared responsibility.
- The customer-owner is in the “driver’s seat” and voices needs and preferences through personal interaction with Southcentral Foundation employees, comment cards, special events like the Gathering, surveys, a 24-hour telephone hotline, focus groups and advisory committees made up of customer-owners, etc.

Relationships

- By connecting with the same people at every visit, strong relationships can be formed with the teams that support you on your wellness journey. These teams get to know your values, goals, priorities and strengths.

Whole-person wellness

- Promotes wellness beyond the absence of illness and prevention of disease.
- Addresses the physical, mental, emotional and spiritual dimensions of whole-person wellness.

Testimonials

“I view Nuka as our ‘true north.’ Nuka’s focus on working with patients and communities to create and promote health in both mind and body serves as a model to use all. Nuka inspired the Center for Primary Care at Harvard Medical School to expand our own focus from health care to health. We look forward to working with Nuka to lead change throughout the world.”

- Russell S. Phillips, M.D., Director of the Harvard Center for Primary Care

“Scotland prides itself in its inventiveness and quality of health care, but it is also open to learning from the best in the world. There is no question in my view (and this is shared with colleagues who have visited SCF), the Nuka Model of Care is world class.”

- Margaret Hannah, Deputy Director of Public Health, NHS Fife

“We were first introduced to SCF in 2005, and we continue to be inspired by their work and the Nuka System of Care. The emphasis on whole system change is transformational. And the focus on designing programs—not just for the population, but with the population—has influenced how we approach program development and community engagement. In fact, the SCF staff’s thoughtful and practical advice has had a major impact on many aspects of our work. SCF remains a mentor, advisor and outstanding example as we make user-centered design the nucleus of our efforts to create community well-being.”

- Patrick Curran, President CEO, CareOregon
